Living at Kidron Bethel Village

As you plan your retirement living at Kidron Bethel Village, the first step is understanding the difference between owning your own home versus living at Kidron Bethel Village with an occupancy agreement, and weighing the advantages for your lifestyle. When you live at Kidron Bethel Village, it is Kidron Bethel Village, not you, who is responsible for maintenance, repairs, upkeep, homeowners insurance and other expenses that are involved with traditional home ownership. The information provided here explains the financial and payment process.

- Application fee: If Kidron Bethel Village or any Bluestem community is a possibility in your future, submitting an application and the $100 fee is the first step. This places you on the independent living wait list according to your application date.
- Entrance fee: Once you are ready to commit to an available home, the entrance fee is paid with a signed contract and Kidron Bethel Village begins preparing your chosen home according to your preferences and the standard plan of refurbishment. Entrance fees vary according to the neighborhood and the features of the home.
- Resident occupancy agreement: When choosing your home, you also will select the resident occupancy agreement that best suits your personal and financial priorities. This agreement guarantees your payment and refund schedule, and gives you the peace of mind and financial certainty of knowing your exact refund at any given time. Your choices are outlined on the following pages. The resident occupancy payment is due at closing.
- Monthly service fee: After closing on your home and receiving the keys, you will be responsible for your utilities and the monthly service fee.
- Refund: When you vacate your home at Kidron Bethel Village, your refund will be determined by the amortization schedule you chose and the amount of time you lived in your home.

Another living and financial option on campus is subsidized housing. Kidron Inc. is an apartment neighborhood with income, age, and mobility qualifications. There are two home floor plans with a variety of amenities and services available. Please let us know if you would like to learn about the pricing and process for qualification at Kidron Inc..
